PROSPEROUS AND BEAUTIFUL

A Souvenir Pictorial Story of the Biggest and Best Little City in Pennsylvania

Out from the haunts of childhood,
Each determined to do the best,
There have wandered many workers,
Who have helped build up the great West.
Some have gone to the East and the Northland,
Some where Southern breezes blow,
Yet Memory steals back to the old town,
To the "Eden" of long ago.
But to those who remained in the home-nest,
All honor to you is due,
For by your unceasing efforts,
From the old town has sprung the new.
Yet it matters not where each dwelleth,
Nor what your station may be,
May your love still increase for old Waynesburg,
When this Souvenir Booklet you see!

My Word For It

WAYNESBURG has been doubly blessed. Generous nature and the loving works of man have combined to make this little spot the beautiful city of homes, culture and wealth that has done so much for so many people. Few towns have had a more honorable existence. Here the redskin gave battle to the early settlers, and many relics of those primeval struggles are still found. The weird tales of murder, massacre and war, the unnatural events and superstitious doings of the Indians, have been handed down from sire to son. The many scenes of pitched battles, whiskey rebellions, prize fights, melees, court-day events, horse swaps, vulgarity and general cussedness have gone, only to leave their mark in such names as Whiskey Alley and Bloody Run. The ground first set aside "for pasture for the poor man's cow" has now been converted into a system of beautiful parks.

The old ways have served their day, a new generation is now on the scene of action. The log huts and stone houses have given way to the beautiful homes that are almost the common property of our people. Waynesburgers are a home-building and a home-loving people.

Morality has reached a high state here; few places our size can show fewer criminals (just at present, there is not an inmate in our county jail); few can show less drunkenness, a higher moral and temperance sentiment and practice, a better average daily life, a higher regard for the rights of others, a more generous spirit of helpfulness, or better neighbors. Social equality, in its broadest and best sense, is the common practice of our daily life.

Education has always had our first thought. We have not only educated our own sons and daughters, but we have helped the ambitious ones who have come here from almost every State and Territory. In the records of the minutes of the school board of 1811 is to be found the following description of an examination of an applicant for teacher of the Franklin school, which was then located about where the old college now stands: "The trustees met according to agreement. Examined James Sendders. He reads and spells tolerably, does not write well; took a specimen of his hand write, laid it before the subscribers, who disapprove of him as a teacher." Compare the above requirements with what an applicant for a school must now have and you have an eloquent story of our educational advancement.

A few of the familiar faces of some of the students who spent many of the happiest days of their life in the college, are shown elsewhere. What a pity we cannot show all the living men and women who received their early inspiration at this fountain of knowledge.

The first thought of the people has always been to rear useful men and women, and by this test Waynesburg is far in the lead of many places where much money has been spent on fine buildings but little effort made to mold the real character of their citizens.

Few people practice the right ideals of life any better than the people of Waynesburg. Sunday to us is neither a Puritan Sabbath, where long faces, loud prayers and heathenish practices of intolerance are the ways of our people; nor are we a Godless set of luxurious spendthrifts, whose Sunday habits are those of the infidel, the pleasure seeker, the sport or the gambler. Sunday in Waynesburg is a day of rest. We neither make war on the trifles with cudgels, much talking and an army with banners, nor do we close our eyes to the real sins that destroy our American Sabbath.

These are my observations and conclusions after spending almost twenty years on the road, visiting thirty-five States, hundreds of towns, and likewise having an acqaintance with the people of Waynesburg covering the same period of time.

In a business way Greene County offers more real wealth, happiness and genuine prosperity to the world to-day than the great Klondike gold fields; and you are not exposed to any of the Klondike hardships. Millions of dollars worth of coal, gas and oil are here, factories are springing up, coal lands are soaring, surveyors are locating coking plants, and real estate must go many times higher. Within a short time we will be in the midst of a great coke and coal development. Our farms are all underlaid with that great vein of coking coal that has made the Connellsville region world famous.

Since the above was written, one of our county papers printed this mere local news item: "Three of our citizens sold their interest in 380 acres of Greene County coal for $400 per acre; the gentlemen named purchased it a year and a half ago for $140 and $145 per acre. They cleared almost $98,000." For business opportunities, keep your eye on Little Greene.

We are not to-day what we ought to be in size, population or wealth. Our growth has been checked because we have had inadequate railroad facilities; but a better day is near at hand, for soon we will have broad-gage railroads that will connect us with the rich business and manufacturing world which lies all about us.

We have come a great way from the days of small things, but the future has much more in store for us. Waynesburg is probably the best paved town of its size in Pennsylvania; well lighted, well drained, well sewered; while natural gas, for domestic purposes, is only twelve and a half cents per thousand feet.

Our mortality shows that we are among the very healthiest cities in America. We are comparatively free from consumption, fever, catarrh, chills, ague and all such common diseases that are the common enemy of mankind.

The child-life here has many advantages that are seldom enjoyed to the same extent as our children enjoy them. Playgrounds are abundant and beautiful; a magnificent verdant country surrounds us on all sides; all nature seems to lend a hand to make Greene County one of the scenic beauty spots of this country. We could almost make a complete book showing the ponies and their young masters, for there are almost fifty of these noble little steeds in Waynesburg.

The defects of this collection are largely to be attributed to the haphazard way they were gotten together. It was only planned to get fifty pages of views, but when once it was started, it was almost impossible to stop.

This is only the work of a private citizen and necessarily is incomplete. The lack of funds has kept out many of the best and most deserving pictures. We have much that is not here represented, and it is my purpose to enlarge this collection, to gather many of the historic facts that ought to be handed down in a permanent form, and to this end I am already at work on a beautiful enlarged collection to be bound in cloth and morocco. To this end, I ask all who have pictures of scenes, persons, places, buildings or events not here represented to communicate with me. Kindly lend me your assistance, and together we will have a work of five or six hundred pages that will be a credit to the place and to the people we all love so well. The large work will contain much more written history. It will be a Waynesburg and Greene County book. The next issue will be, primarily, for the home and school library.

I wish to return my heartiest thanks to all who have in any way helped or aided in making this the representative collection that it is. May you appreciate my work as much as I appreciate your kindness, and may this mutual effort go forth to the world to convey a faint idea of our beautiful city, our friendly people, our homes, our business and some of the golden industrial opportunities that simply await your pleasure.

Waynesburg College (Viewed from West Park)

WAYNESBURG College was chartered March 25, 1850, by the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The regular work began in November, 1851. Its charter confers upon the corporation all privileges usually granted to the trustees of such institutions.

Co-education has always been the policy of this institution. The college is now in a very prosperous condition; the student body is larger than it has been for years. Our students are from the earnest, hard-working class who come to college to get an education by personal effort.

We are proud of the alumni and glory in their ever upward struggle and noble achievements. If by their works ye shall judge them, then Waynesburg College will take a high rank as one of the noble institutions of this land, for her sons and daughters have ever ministered unto the sick, preached the gospel at home and carried the blessing of Christianity to the heathen. They have made the law; they have administered it. They have given character, brains and brawn to many a new settlement in the far West. Her sons and daughters almost without number have been teachers in universities, colleges and the common schools. Merchants, mechanics, bankers, lawyers, statesmen, editors and farmers have gone forth to do the work of the world. Her daughters, too, have ever kept pace with the brightest of her sons.

For half a century, Dr. A. B. Miller, D. D., LL. D., struggled to build up here in our midst the beautiful building that is now the pride of our county. Few men are privileged to be more useful to so many of their fellows than the father of Waynesburg College. His life was a life of earnest, persistent work, a monumental achievement for his day, and a glorious benefaction for generations yet to come.

We have here a high grade college for the education of both sexes. Strong faculties, handsome buildings, well-balanced courses, progressive methods, high moral tone, thorough instruction, delightful location, moderate expenses.

Attention is called to the excellent facilities for instruction in all the departments of the college.

The laboratories have been recently enlarged and the work of the institution in general modernized.

The musical advantages are unsurpassed, and students are offered the services of specialists in piano, organ, harmony, violin, harp and voice.

Copies of the annual catalogue and detailed information will be given on application to J. F. Bucher, Acting President.

The New M. E. Church, Cor. Richhill and Franklin Sts.

THE Methodists have always been noted for their push and perseverance, and the Waynesburg church is no exception to the rule. Rev. J. B. Taylor, the pastor in charge, has been a great worker and much of the credit for building the present magnificent church rightly belongs to Mr. Taylor. Captain J. B. Donley is superintendent of the Sunday-school and this department has taken a noble part in all the hustling efforts for a new building. The Epworth League officers are: Nellie Donley, President; Olla Ayers, H. L. Headlee and Milton Manning, Vice-Presidents; Belva Ayers, Secretary; Henry Hudson, Treasurer; Jessie Manning, Pianist. The League twice came forward with $500 pledges for the new church.

The Present Church as it Looked in the Seventies

The Methodist Episcopal Church was first organized in 1803, as a part of a circuit. The church was erected in what is now known as the "Old Methodist Graveyard," just east of the present borough limits. In 1843 the society built a large brick meeting-house near the center of town. It was rebuilt in 1876 upon the same site that the former building occupied. It is the one shown here.

The old church has served its day and generation. The scenes, by the thousands, that are now only memories, which cluster around this building, cannot be pictured. This hustling people will soon give us our finest church home, for the new church is now nearing completion,

An Interior View

SOME work had been done in Waynesburg by the Christian Church people previous to the spring of 1899. The Ladies' Aid Society was organized November 17, 1897. The church was organized June 8, 1899. Evangelist Gilbert L. Harney had held a four weeks' meeting in the courthouse. F. F. Bullard, Corresponding Secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Christian Missionary Society, was present and assisted in the organization. There were eighteen names as the original charter members, though the charter was afterward opened and other names added.

In a short time plans were begun for building a house of worship. The cornerstone of the present building was laid in January, 1901, and the building dedicated in December of the same year. It was refrescoed and reopened for service in December of 1905. Gilbert L. Harney was the first regular minister. The congregation has been served by A. A. Doak, A. P. Cobb, and E. W. Thornton. The church has increased in strength very rapidly. The membership now numbers 275. The congregation is organized along all lines of aggressive church work. There is an enthusiastic Bible school, an energetic Ladies' Aid Society, active societies of both Senior and Junior Christian Endeavor. The church is taking its place in the missionary and benevolent enterprises of the Christian Church at large.

The present officers are: F. A. Bright, Minister; John Fry, Norval Hoge and James Call, Elders; S. M. Hill, W. J. Hindman, E. B. Throckmorton, Dr. T. L. Blair, E. E. Morris, John Huffman, Elsworth Cathers, and James Cameron, Deacons; J. P. Allum, W. F. Blair, John Fry, Harvey Call, E. B. Throckmorton, and S. M. Hill, Trustees.

WHAT is now known as the First Baptist Church of Waynesburg, was organized at Hill's schoolhouse, July 10, 1843, with the following named constituent members: Anna Moore, Cynthia Ann Strayhan, Jane McCormick, Rebecca Carpenter, Nancy Hoskinson, Mary Jennings, Sarah Jennings, Ann Dalison, Eliza Zollars, Carl Moore, Charles Carpenter, Thomas Hoskinson, J. S. Jennings, and Alfred Chawler.

The following named ministers have served the church: James Woods (supplied "as often as his other duties would permit"), S. Seigfried, S. H. Reiple, W. Whitehead, Samuel Morehead, R. M. Fish, A. J. Collins, Francis Downey, William S. Wood, Charles Tilton, S. Kendall, H. K. Craig, D. D., James Miller, W. W. Hickman, W. M. Ryan, D. D. (twelve years), P. F. DeLancy, and the present pastor, J. E. Darby, D. D., who is now serving the tenth year of a second pastorate.

The church now numbers 327 members.

The present edifice was erected in 1883. It faces High and West Streets, with Sunset Park in the rear. In 1904 the interior was greatly improved and a pipe organ installed. A new building in a down-town location is contemplated.

Presbyterian Church, Church St.

THE Presbyterians organized into a legal church on the 11th day of June, 1842. The first church was located on Morris Street, next to the Wright House (now the Walton Hotel).

There were only eighteen original members, as follows: John, Sr., John, Jr., Rachel and George Kiegley, Martha Blachley, William and Nancy Braden, Catharine and Emaline loghram, Obadiah and Charity Van Cleave, Margaret Cook, Rebecca Fleouiken, William and Margaret Reed, Hannah Brooks, Nancy Rees and Mary Allison.

The Old Presbyterian Church, Morris St.

Prof. Nicholas Murray was the first minister in charge. Rev. Samuel Jeffery was pastor here from 1854 to 1859. Mr. Jeffery was one of the most successful ministers ever stationed here. Here his earthly ministry came to a close, but even yet one often hears of the work of this earnest, noble pastor. Rev. E. P. Lewis served from 1873 to 1875 and was the first minister who gave his entire time to this people. Rev. George Frazer was stated supply from 1875 to 1881. Rev. Joseph A. Donahey supplied the pulpit from 1882 to 1891. Then came Rev. W. G. Nevin, who remained here until 1895. Dr. J. M. Mealey, who recently resigned, was pastor for the past eight years.

The present church, located on Church Street, was erected in 1880. There has always been a strong Presbyterian sentiment here, and now that the Presbyterians have united with the Cumberland Presbyterians, a new church and enlarged work will no doubt soon follow.

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church, known in former days as the Brick Church on the Hill

THE Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg was organized in November, 1831. The old church on the hill, that stood just east of where the Soldiers' Monument now stands, was the first brick church erected in Waynesburg. This building was afterward used as a rooming house for students who wished to keep down expenses by doing their own housekeeping and by boarding themselves. Some of our best known men not only slept in the church pew on Sunday, but they actually slept behind the pulpit at night.

The Cumberland Presbyterians have never had much of a church building, but around these plain old walls cluster a thousand memories of helpful services and inspiring, uplifting evenings spent in these modest but truly great buildings. It is not going beyond the bounds of fair statement to say that the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg has done a giant's work in molding the sentiment of this entire county, by touching the lives of hundreds of young men and women in a way that has left its moral and spiritual stamp upon their character, that only time can erase. This church has ever had a strong hold on the student body. To hundreds these pictures will recall those happy days spent in Waynesburg College, when life's ambitions were in the budding time.

Cumberland Presbyterian Church, W. High St.

The church to-day is in a thriving condition, well organized in all departments. Rev. James Garvin is pastor and much of the spirit of unity that made it possible for these two churches to unite is to be attributed to his broad Christian generalship. The Cumberland Presbyterian and the Presbyterion Churches officially united, so we have only the Presbyterian. A plan is now being worked out, whereby the two churches will be one in service, membership and spirit.

St. Ann's Catholic Church

THE establishment of Catholicity in Greene County dates back to the year 1796, when the Rev. Patrick Louergan, a priest of the order of St. Francis, brought a colony of Irish and settled here. Shortly after Waynesburg was laid out as a town, Father Louergan purchased five corner lots, one being that upon which the church and rectory now stand. He remained as the spiritual guide of his flock until the year 1800, when failing health compelled him to seek again his native shore; not, however, before he had erected a modest log structure to serve the purpose of a house of worship.

The next authentic account of the visit of a priest within our borders is found in a letter of the Rev. W. F. O'Brien, dated January 22, 1817, and addressed to the Most Rev. Archbishop Neale, in which he assures His Grace that Greene County is included in his itinerary once or twice a year. From 1837 until 1871, the Catholics of the county had their spiritual needs satisfied yearly, frequently several times a year, as the baptismal records show. In the last mentioned year the Rev. Henry McHugh saw the present structure rear its head as a monument to his priestly zeal. In 1897 Waynesburg was made the seat of a resident pastor, and the Rev. Thomas Hearn received the initial appointment. Since then a new impetus has been given Catholicity, the faith has been strengthened, and the number of adherents has been increased.

The pastor for the last three years and a half has been the Rev. John L. Martin.

The Methodist Protestant Church

ISAAC SLATER conveyed the ground upon which the present church now stands, to the trustees of the church on the 18th of June, 1831. South of this was Marion Township. The fields were planted in corn, close up to the church, and from this condition arose the popular nickname by which the old church was known, "the corn-field church." In its day the church was considered one of the finest in architectural beauty. It had a large gallery in it. Among the officers of the early church are to be found the names of Solomon Eagon (chairman), Daniel Hook (recording steward), William Ingram, Arthur Rinehart, Andrew Wilson, and Nicolas Hager, Esq.

Rev. C. A Sturm was pastor at the time the present structure was built (1893).

The church membership was made up of many of the citizens of Waynesburg and surrounding country. It has had many hard struggles but is to-day one of the thriving churches of the county. It is well organized in all departments, doing effective work along all lines of church activity.

The pastor in charge at this time is Rev. J. F. Dimit, who has for three years rendered valuable service to the church and the community.

The M. P. Church has always been close to the hearts of our people.

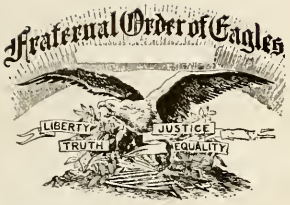
Fraternal Order of Eagles



WAYNESBURG Aerie, No. 598, Fraternal Order of Eagles, was instituted January 22, 1904.

Not yet nine years old, the Fraternal Order of Eagles has a membership of over 250,000, among whom are the most distinguished men in America. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, Senators, members of Congress and lawyers of national prominence are among its members.

This order represents in the highest form the true democracy of fraternalism. Its creed is simple, and each Eagle, wherever located, is the equal of every other, avocation, wealth or religion having no influence on one's standing. Some of the benefits of the order may be summed up as follows:

Every member of the Order is entitled to the attendance of the Aerie physician, both for himself and his family, free of charge in case of sickness.

A sick member is entitled to receive $5 a week from the general fund of the Aerie, during ten weeks of such disability. The attention of visiting committee, whose duty it is to call upon him daily and render such assistance as he may require.

Any member in distress or needy circumstance has the right to apply to any Aerie of the Order, and they are bound to render such help as may be authorized by the Aerie of which he is a member.

In the case of the decease of a member, the Aerie pays the family sufficient sum to defray funeral expenses.

The monthly dues are placed at a very nominal figure.

The social feature of the Order is one of great attractiveness, being new and up-to-date in every particular.

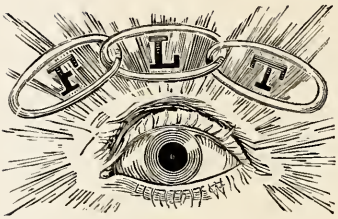
The officers of Waynesburg Aerie are as follows: Past Presidents, Max Harrison, R. J. O'Brien, W. R. Anderson; Worthy President, D. L. Sayers; Vice-President, F. O. Frye; Chaplain, A. Z. Harman; Treasurer, Blaine Grim; Secretary, F. W. Stoy; Conductor, Wm. McGreevy; Trustees, H. C. Staggers, R. L. Summersgill, O. F. Blackburn; Inside Guard, A. Will Howard; Outside Guard, James Stilwell; Physician, Dr. R. W. Norris.

Social Rooms, N. Washington Street.

Waynesburg Aerie meets first and third Monday of each month. All visiting Eagles are welcome.

Since its organization Aerie No. 598 has made rapid strides, both financially and in membership, having at the present time 130 members in good standing, and with its steady increase in membership bids fair soon to equal many of our older organizations.

Independent Order of Odd Fellows



THE Independent Order of Odd Fellows is one of the oldest fraternal and secret organizations in this country. It has for its motto the three links, Friendship, Love, Truth. It has for its object the elevation of human character, the relief of its members in time of trial and distress, the visitation of the sick, the burial of the dead, the education of the orphans, and the protection of the widows and the aged; it teaches man to adore God, to be faithful to his country and fraternal to his fellow-man. It has beautiful and instructive forms and binding obligations that make the Independent Order of Odd Fellows a potent factor for good.

Our Order has the largest membership of any secret organization in existence. We have a total of 14,345 subordinate Lodges, 3,172 Encampments, 6,876 Rebecca Lodges, with a total membership of 1,520,621, and spend $4,633,649.05 annually for the relief of distress.

Waynesburg Lodge No. 469 was instituted June 17, 1852, with the following officers: A. Porter, Noble Grand; William Pool, Vice Grand; A. Wilson, Jr., Secretary; F. B. Wilson, Treasurer; E. H. Clark, Warden; S. Engle, Outside Guardian; R. D. Mickle, Inside Guardian; A. Buchanan Right Support to V. G.; L. Myers, Left Support to V. G.

It now has a membership of 161, with the following officers: S. R. Phillips, N. G.; J. C. Huffman, V. G.; W. O. Headlee, Sec'y.; Harvey Call, Treas.; J. B. Conley, R. S. to N. G.; F. L. Johnson, L. The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America

THE Brotherhood was organized at Chicago in 1881 with twelve Local Unions, with a membership of 2,042. Last year there were 1,759 Local Unions with a membership of 161,217.

The Brotherhood is an International Union, covering the United States and Canada.

The objects, briefly set forth, are to discourage piece work, to encourage an apprentice system and a higher standard of skill, to cultivate feelings of friendship and sociability among the craft, to assist each other to secure employment, to reduce the hours of labor, to increase the intelligence and happiness of the laborer, to increase the demand for labor, to raise the standard of wages. The Union furnishes aid in case of death, sickness or permanent disability.

That the Union has been a great blessing to all carpenters everywhere is not doubted by anyone familiar with conditions previous to its formation; when wages were from one dollar to a dollar and a half a day, when mechanics worked from twelve to fourteen hours a day, when most of the wages were paid in store goods, orders and script, and Sunday was the only day he saw his children, or had the pleasure of sitting down to his own table with his family.

There are now many books, papers and magazines that disseminate good mechanical ideas, helpful suggestions and theories proved by practice, published in the interest of their craft and supported by its army of busy, intelligent workers.

The Brotherhood is represented among us by Local Union No. 987, organized in February, 1902. The Union is in a flourishing condition financially, with forty members. They meet every Tuesday night in the Americus Hall, where all visiting brothers will find a hearty welcome. All capable of upholding standard wages are invited to join and help to still further increase the social, mental and material welfare of the craft, those depending upon it and the community at large.

The following are the officers of the Wayoesburg Brotherhood: President, William Taylor; Vice-President, McClelland Shultz; Recording Secretary, S. A. Ketler; Financial Secretary, J. A. J. Cole; Treasurer, William Shultz; Conductor, C. B. Ullom; Warden, J. S. Keener; Trustees, S. A. Ketler, W. C. Taylor, J. J. McCormick; Auditors, Walter Taylor, D. C. Rush.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Unions

THE Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Waynesburg now consists of three distinct organizations: namely, the Woman's, Frances Willard's and Y's. The oldest was organized in 1881. Mrs. Harriet W. Sayers, wife of our venerable townsman, Ezra M. Sayers, Esq., was the first president. She was a born leader, and gave such intelligent effort, such unselfish devotion and consecrated zeal to the cause of temperance that even yet "her works do follow her."

Among the charter members who wrought so nobly with President Sayers, especially along the line of remonstrance against the granting of license, we find these names on an old file of minutes: Mrs. Nancy and Sabina Hays, Mrs. Waddell, Mrs. Lewis Day and daughter Elizabeth, Mrs. Elizabeth Linsey Crawford, Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Mrs. Prof. Scott, Mrs. R. W. Dougan, the Misses Belle Braden, Tillie Hays and Alice Melvin. Also Dr. Jane Teagarden, who was ably assisted by her father, Isaac Teagarden, Esq.

The first Greene County W. C. T. U. Convention was held in 1882. State President Swift and State Superintendent Mair were speakers who gave the work fresh impetus, numbers and influence.

The movement was checked and its growth retarded after the National Convention of 1889, when the organization resolved itself into a Partisan and Non-Partisan Union and Alliance. Waynesburg Union suffered the loss of many of its ablest women, who have ever since been W. C. T. U. in sentiment if not in name.

In the campaign for State prohibition in 1890, old differences were largely adjusted and new Unions organized within the county. Mrs. Jennie Fordyce Sayers, now superintendent of Mothers' Meetings and president of the Mothers' Club, was elected president during the period of reorganization, and carried the work to a successful issue by holding a harmonious County W. C. T. U. Convention in the C. P. Church in 1904, which has since been held annually, the last being held at Carmichaels, September 5, 6, 1906.

Mrs. Mary S. Parry, first County President, has been local president of the Waynesburg W. C. T. U. since 1898; Mrs. Eva K. Bowlby, Vice-President; Mrs. Anna Millikin, Corresponding Secretary; Miss Ida Huss, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Belle E. Funk, Treasurer.

The Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union was organized in 1887, but is now graduated into the Francis Willard Union. Its president is Miss Mary E. Sayers, the youngest daughter of our beloved first president, Mrs. Harriet W. Sayers. It is a strong, active union and is at present taking the initiative in raising the money to purchase a public drinking fountain for Court House Square.

The Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Miss Iona Wood, President, was organized in 1904. It is largely composed of young girls from high school and college, whose influence for purity and wholesome living cannot be estimated.

We wish we had space to give the names of our W. C. T. U. women who are doing grand work as superintendents of the following departments: Evangelistic, Unfermented Wine, Scientific Temperance, Legislative and Petition, Jail and Almshouse, Railroad and Soldiers, Flower Mission, Peace, Purity, Sunday-school Pledge Signing, Press, Fair Work, Mercy, Parlor Meetings, Franchise, Non-alcoholic Medication, Distribution Temperance and Religious Literature, Urging Law Enforcement.

Quietly, steadfastly and earnestly these three Unions are trying to make the W. C. T. U. the leading, as well as the oldest club in Waynesburg; also by tact and sympathy and Christian courtesy, getting into touch with all organizations that will help us in the future, as in the past quarter of a century, to keep the saloon out of our beloved county. A picture of one of our strongest churches, taken in the seventies, shows in close proximity an advertisement of "Pure Old Monongahela Rye Whiskey." We belong to all the churches and are intensely loyal to them, but we are "one in Christ Jesus," and our white ribbon badge is the tie that binds in closest fellowship, co-workers for "God and Home and Native Land."

The Chautauqua Reading Circle

THE Waynesburg Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle had its origin at Chautauqua, N. Y., in 1903, among a number of Waynesburg people who were attending the assembly that year.

Through their interest and enthusiasm a circle of fourteen members was organized on their return home, and the initial meeting was held at the home of Miss Myrtle Parker the first Friday in October.

During the year the membership increased to thirty-eight. Meetings for study and review were held semi-monthly at the homes of the members. The following year there were forty-two members enrolled, but this number was somewhat diminished by removals. During the three years, fifty-seven members have been enrolled.

One of the delightful features of the circle has been the social gatherings: indoor and outdoor picnics and informal receptions. Two or three have been held each year. Shakespeare day was observed last year and a character reception was given in which a Shakespearean farce was rendered by four young ladies of the circle.

The success and efficiency of this society is preeminently due to the unremitting effort and zeal of Dr. J. M. Howard, the honored president of the organization.

The officers for the present year are: President, Dr. J. M. Howard; Vice-President, Miss Mary E. Sayers; Secretary, Miss Myrtle Parker; Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Purman.

There are forty-three members now reading the regular Chautauqua Course. The Circle is now studying the Shakespearean Course as laid out by the Chautauqua management, along with a year in English history.

Waynesburg has reason to be proud of her Chautauqua Reading Circle.

A Flash-light of the Maccabees taken in their Lodge Hall

THE Knights of the Maccabees is one of the strongest beneficiary and fraternal organizations in America. On account of its merits as a fraternal and social organization, the order has made rapid progress in the United States and Canada. Its membership now reaches nearly 400,000. It has a surplus of over $35,000,000 as an emergency fund.

Waynesburg Tent No. 385 was organized in June, 1901. The members carry from $250 to $3,000. Each member can also carry sick and accident policies.

The insurance feature is comparatively low and within the reach of most any industrious and economical person who has the welfare of his family at heart. The interests of the members are looked after, especially in sickness or at times when a member has no employment.

The present membership of the local Tent is eighty-eight. The Tent meets in Independence Hall the second and fourth Thursdays of each month, where all visiting members will find a hearty welcome.

The following officers have been elected for the present term: W. H. Edwards, Commander; Charles Wise, Lieutenant Commander; C. S. Woodruff, Sergeant; W. W. Evans, Record Keeper and Finance Keeper; W. S. Zimmerman, Chaplain; Melvin Rhome, Master of Arms; John Wise and Harry Hawkins, First and Second Master of Guards; Frank Amdursky, Sentinel; John Phillips, Picket.

Interior of Philomathean Hall

THE first minutes of the Philomathean Literary Society of Waynesburg College state that it was "that division of the old Lamartine Society which had been chosen by A. J. Yeater," and which met for organization on February 11, 1851. At that time Phillip Axtell was elected president and Thomas Henderson, secretary. On the first roll are found such names a A. G. Cross, A. A. Purman, James and William Lazear, I. Lindsey, I. Rogers, etc.

The society halls were evidently not finished at this time, for the meetings were held in the Baptist Church and later in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. The minutes for November 10, 1851, however, begin "Philo Hall" and tell of drawing cuts for the choice of halls, resulting in Philo's first choice and her selection of the western room. Here the meetings of this society and of the "Emma Willards" were held, one of the two literary organizations in the "Female Department."

The records of this time are exceedingly interesting, telling of fines of six and one-fourth cents for laughing, twelve and one-half cents against one member who insisted on lying down during the meeting, thirty-seven and one half cents expended for candles and later thirty cents for lamp pipes, and $12.50 for the services of the brass band at contest. And these contests seem to have been the bone of contention between the societies from their earliest history, the tendency to "scrap" showing as plainly in the records of fifty years ago as in the records of to-day. Philo is justly proud of the fact that for twenty-three years she has stood first in these contests and now leads by twenty-five points.

In 1874 the Emma Willard Society united with the Philomathean, and in 1884 moved into the new college building. Again Philo was fortunate in getting the choice of halls, and in securing her present delightful habitation, the western hall on the third floor.

The literary societies have not only been one of the educational factors in Waynesburg College, but the chief social centers as well, and second only to his loyalty to the school, comes the old student's loyalty to his "society."

A few of the many distinguished men and women who were at one time members of the Philomathean Society

1, Gov. A. B. Cummings, of Iowa. 2, S. L. Mestrezat, State Supreme Court judge. 3, General John I. Rodgers, U. S. A. 4, W. H. Black, D. D., LL. D., for forty years President of Waynesburg College. 7, Rev. David H. King, D. D., Vineland, N. J. 8, Dr. William M. Beach, Ex-president of the American Medical Society. 9, J. J. Purman, Medical Examiner U. S. Pension Department, Washington, D. C. 10, T. S. Crago, Major Tenth Regiment National Guards of Pennsylvania. 11, Dr. Walter G. Scott, Ph. D., the Distinguished Mathematician. 12, Estella Biddle Clark, Preceptress of the College. 13, Hon. D. S. Walton, our present State Senator.

Interior of the Union Society Hall

THE Union Society of Waynesburg College extends heartiest greetings to all its one-time members and friends. This organization, with its sister society, the Philo, was founded in 1851, at the same time as the origin of the college; and in 1858 obtained a charter from the legislature, with the object of "the promotion of literature, virtue and friendship, mutual improvement in composition and elocution, and enlarging the fund of information."

At the same time that the Union and Philo Societies were founded among the gentlemen, two similar societies, the Emma Willard and the Philean, were founded among the young ladies. These four organizations flourished until about 1875, when the Emma Willards united with the Philos, and the Phileans with the Unions.

Some objections had been filed to the union of the societies up to this time, but through the kind and tactful efforts of Mrs. M. K. B. Miller, wife of our late President of Waynesburg College, Dr. A. B. Miller, the union was accomplished; she urging that to be a successful coeducational college, we must have coeducation in all departments of college work.

The society halls have twice been refitted and refurnished entirely at the expense of the former and present members and friends, and are now in excellent condition.

For many years each society owned a fairly well equipped library, also the gift of members and friends; but, owing to the difficulty of keeping a strict account of the books, both societies donated them to the college library.

Union points with honor to all her sons and daughters, and rejoices to have them return at the annual reunions, to say that of all the college memories, the most delightful, and those best remembered, center around Union Hall and their fellow society members, and further to testify to the advantages of literary work to teach "how to tell" what one has learned.

As to the work of the Union Society of the future, it is this—to live up to Union's motto, "Fas et virtutem vindicamus."

IN the year 1771, Thomas Slater settled on Ten Mile Creek, in what was then Monongalia County, Virginia, and Francis Peyton, Philip Pendleton and Joseph Holmes, the commissioners appointed to adjust the claims of unpatented lands in the counties of Monongalia, Yohogania and Ohio, certified that Thomas Slater was entitled to 395 acres of land to include his settlement.

There is an old legend current that Thomas Slater purchased this land from an Indian for a two-year-old heifer and a flint-lock rifle. The legal title to this land was procured by an application to the land office, which was then located at Lancaster, Pa., whereupon a warrant, dated the 5th day of June, 1787, was granted to him, and later a return of survey was made, upon which a patent was issued March 7, 1789.

Thomas Slater sold the above three hundred and ninety-five acres, called Eden, to the trustees of Greene County, October 28, 1796, for $2,396. As late as 1843 there were only about eighty dwellings in Waynesburg. In 1875 the town is shown by a picture elsewhere. Our little city has grown in wealth, culture, education and refinement, in keeping with its size.

The four corner lots on Washington and High Streets are to-day worth over half a million dollars. Real Estate has advanced more since 1896 than it had in the previous century. Recently $55,000 worth of town lots were sold in one week to our own people. There are 375,000 acres of an eight-foot vein of coal in Greene County waiting development. In 1900 this coal was optioned at prices ranging from $4 to $60 per acre. This coal is now bringing from $100 to $500 per acre. When developed and used for coking it will be worth from $5,000 to $8,000 per acre.

Factory sites, cheap fuel, sober, contented workmen, beautiful homes. A very fertile, productive surrounding country from which an abundance of everything flows to Waynesburg. These are among the many advantages enjoyed by this community.

All land within a radius of five miles of Waynesburg has increased from 100 to 1,000% within the last five years. The map shows a run where Morris Street is now located. Some of our most valuable lots were counted worthless fifty years ago. Our old citizens still remember when a foot-log crossed Morris Street at High Street. The reasons we have grown is because the great gas fields are on all sides of us; we have large oil interests; our people have the advantages of a splendid college. The next ten years will bring standard-gage railroads, factories, coke and coal development, glass plants, more and larger tin and iron mills. No spot on earth offers a better chance for the safe investment of capital.

We will gladly give you any information concerning real estate, coal lands, factory sites, business opportunities. We will at any time gladly show you around our little city, point out the places of interest, introduce you to our people, and show that the above are only a few of the blessings that make Waynesburg prosperous and beautiful.

Address or call at any time on Silveus & Fordyce, General Insurance and Real Estate, Coal, Oil, and Gas Lands, Sayers Building, Rooms 9, 10.

The Downey House Corner as the Old-Timers Knew It (Looking East)

THERE are few spots around Waynesburg that have undergone a greater change than the corner shown in this picture. The corner lot originally sold for $104. The Bull's Head or Adams Inn was the forerunner of the magnificent Downey House Hotel. When N. Clark & Sons sold linen dusters and Greely hats, no one ever expected to see the Grossman Department Store with all the improvements of a city skyscraper, now in use, and a busy department store selling to an army, where a few formerly dealt.

Where Josiah Porter kept his general store, is now a busy scene of rush and hurry, for Harvey Call's large grocery delivers the real living for the greater part of the people; and busy wagons scurry around town, where before the tired boy went to the store.

Think of what one of our old-timers would say if he were to return to life, step into Jesse L. Ross' Drug Store and see all the great improved medical appliances, new discoveries and compounds. The toilet articles that are so handsomely made and so inexpensive. Think of a wash with toilet soap to one who had used the wood-ash-lye soap that the good housewife formerly made. This same soap, that grandma used to make, would remove the skin from a modern individual almost as readily as the Indian's knife relieved the early settler of his scalp. Think of the pewter spoons and leaden ladles with which the old-timers took their "British ile," and then look at the tablets and capsules of the present day. The science of medicine has added over ten years to the average life of our people.

In ye olden days the people of Waynesburg carried tin lanterns punched with holes around the sides to let out the light, and a tallow candle was inside; then came the square lantern with the glass sides; then the oil lantern with the glass globe. Some of our people still remember when the little spoon-shaped lamp was used. This crude affair had a rag hanging out over the side and it was on this that the blaze was kept. Tallow, lard or grease was poured over the rag. Think of this early system of lighting, when the old people were even afraid of oil lamps; what would they say if they could come to our modern gas and electrically lighted homes?

What would a visit to C. M. Parker's store mean to an old-timer? What would he think to see the modern works of the lamp manufacturer's art? The student's lamp? The dazzling chandeliers that are ready to be installed into your home by this electrical and scientific plumber?

We are living in a fast age and we ourselves are not aware of the many improvements that are being made in the heating, lighting and plumbing systems of our days. Mr. Parker's store is the place and Mr. Parker is the man to show you all the latest and best things in his line. Every town has an expert in this line and Waynesburg is no exception.

Hon. E. M. Sayers

HON. E. M. SAYERS is the oldest citizen in Waynesburg. He was born May 30, 1812, in the log house that formerly stood on the lot where Dr. Ullom's residence is now located. He is the son of Ephraim Sayers, one of the remarkable men of his day.

He was admitted to the bar in 1835 and has been one of our leading lawyers and capitalists for almost three-quarters of a century.

Mr. Sayers has been an active citizen all his life; one of our reliable business men, whose keen insight into the intricacies of finance has been universally recognized. He was president of the F. and D. National Bank for many years; president of the Board of Trustees of Waynesburg College when the cornerstone was laid for the new college building. "Uncle Ezra," as he has been familiarly called, has always been a friend to the cause of education, and until recently a constant attendant at all of the college gatherings.

The Chautauqua movement has had his entire sympathy, and for years he was a well known cottager at the Mother Chautauqua's annual sessions. Although nearing the century mark, he still has that subtle, appreciative mind that has marked his entire career.

It is an inspiration to anyone to talk with a man whose early life was a part of the history of the days when our forefathers were doing the twelve herculean tasks that had to be done before we could enjoy the blessings that are ours to-day.

A Section of the Bird-Study of J. Warren Jacobs

World's Fair Gold Medal

MR. JACOBS' home is No. 404 South Washington Street.

Aside from his regular business, for twenty-two years he has been a close student of bird-life, studying the birds in their natural haunts, and recording his observations on their nesting and food habits and migration in an accurate and systematic manner in books prepared expressly for the purpose. He follows the birds with a camera and takes rare snapshots of bird-life, nests and eggs in situation.

In 1893, the only State exhibit of birds' eggs seen at the Columbian Exposition was the Pennsylvania collection owned and exhibited by Mr. Jacobs.

The enlarged and much improved collection was again loaned to the State for exhibition at the St. Louis World's Fair, 1904. Here a gold medal and diploma were conferred upon him for this excellent display.

The colony of purple martins that nest in the bird houses on his home grounds, has become famous. The bird houses appearing in cuts of residences of Waynesburg citizens in this booklet were built by the subject of this sketch.

Mr. Jacobs holds membership in all the leading scientific bird-study associations and is the publisher of a series of pamphlets giving the results of his investigations.

WAYNESBURG has a fine water system. Ten Mile Creek is one of the few pure streams that courses through a well kept farming section, with no mills, factories or mines (above the pumping station) to pollute or taint its waters.

The picture shows that the pumping station is not only a well kept building, full of glittering machinery, but it is one of our beautiful pieces of scenery that has always attracted many visitors.

We are doubly blessed, for we have an inexhaustible supply of soft water, free from lime or minerals, to be reached by Artesian wells, aside from the streams that flow through our town.

We are blessed with a fine location for a reservoir, for the hill north of town, upon which our water supply is kept in store, is high above the town. The force of gravity from this reservoir gives us one of the best water systems in the State for fire purposes.

We are amply protected from the ravenous flames that so soon wipe out a city, as we have fire plugs on almost every corner. Our water rates for domestic purposes are very reasonable and we have an ample supply for all purposes.

Waynesburg, Washington, Braddock, Charleroi, Uniontown, Cumberland (Md.), East Liverpool and Steubenville (both of Ohio), made up the Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland League. This was one of the fastest minor leagues in America. We saw some great games. The pennant was not won until the last game was played, and the first seven clubs closed the season with less than one hundred points between them. The P. O. M. took two out of three games played with the National League.

THE year 1774 was known in local history as the "bloody year." Fort Jackson was built on the plateau (that is now a part of East Waynesburg) near the mouth of John Wiley's Run. It was the refuge for about fifty families that resided in this neighborhood. At first this fortification was but a single cabin remodeled and reconstructed into a sort of blockhouse. It was increased in size as the inhabitants increased and dangers thickened, until it was a regular stockade of great capacity and superior strength. It consisted of a regular system of cabins, arranged in the form of a hollow square and enclosing an acre of ground. Between these cabins were palisades ten or twelve feet high, all supplied with portholes and other necessary essentials to effective defense. Each prominent, thrifty settler in this neighborhood who looked to Fort Jackson for protection, owned one of its elementary cabins, and besides a home on his farm had a home of defense to be resorted to in case of danger.

The old settlers built their cabins under the protecting care of the fort, for the redskin was as ready with destructive flames to burn the home as he was to scalp the inmates.

Man has always found it necessary to look to the combined assistance of his fellows to help protect his home. Nations build navies and drill armies in times of peace to be ready to protect their possessions in times of trouble.

The business world has found it a necessity to insure all the goods, buildings, and furniture against loss by fires, floods, winds, burglars and a hundred other enemies. The most prudent people on earth carry insurance on all their property. Where would new Baltimore be without the millions of fire insurance that poured into the stricken city? Chicago and San Francisco were likewise helped.

Individuals who are looking for insurance with reliable companies that have a standing army of 80,000,000 dollars ready to fight your battle and make good your loss, should lose no time to come in under the protecting care of this great power.

Harry B. Goodwin and Daniel B. Huffman have one of the best real estate, insurance and loan offices in Waynesburg. They are ready at all times to show you their business opportunities and places for investments. They are ever ready to promote legitimate stock companies.

If you are wise, you will lay aside a fraction of your plenty for compounded trouble that the future may bring you. Visit room No. 2 in the Downey House Building and come out a safer, saner man.

THIS is one of our historic buildings. It was in the rooms on the second floor that Miss Margaret Kerr Bell taught the girls' classes in 1850; this was the beginning of the Female Department of the College.

This building was used for years as a hotel; the bar-room was in the room now occupied by J. G. Gordan's store.

In this building Messrs. Harry Taylor and George Huffman carry on their large and extensive real estate and insurance business.

In the room where once the students, with pencil and slate, struggled with interest and square root, are put through some of the plans that have made this one of the leading real estate firms of the county.

THE best test of what any people are, or what they do, is found in the articles offered for sale at their stores and shops.

No better evidence can be had that Waynesburgers are a home-loving, home-building people than the immense stock of everything in the way of home and office furniture offered for sale here.

The Waynesburg Furniture and Undertaking Company have one of the largest stores in this section. They carry everything that is needed for comfort, convenience and luxury.

The interior of our homes are as beautiful and home-like as the exteriors are magnificent and stately, and there is nothing better to prove to the world that we are a reading people, than the almost universal use of the Macy sectional bookcases that are in almost every home and office. Much of the harmony that so completely heightens the effect and appearance of some of the best homes, has been the result of the artistic temperament of the good wife, ever ready to find opportunities for the decorative changes of the never ending variety to which these sections of golden oak, maple or mahogany bookcases lend themselves so admirably.

This company is sole agent for the celebrated Macy sectional bookcase and office furniture.

The most complete undertaking establishment in Greene County. Store in the post-office building.

R. L. Summersgill's Marble and Granite Works, Cor. Washington and Franklin Sts.

MR. SUMMERSGILL has built up a very large trade in his line of work. He deals in granite and marble monuments, chimney caps, pavements and all kinds of stone work. Mr. Summersgill now has the largest stock that he has ever carried, and anyone wishing first-class work will do well to visit this old, reliable establishment.

It has been fifty years since this marble business, now carried on so extensively, was first established by the present proprietor's father, J. J. Summersgill. All over Greene County, in almost every spot where chiseled marble marks the resting-place of some dear one, is found the mark of the master workman, and the name "Summersgill Marble Works" (found on the base) indicates the confidence the people of this county have in this firm.

The very latest and most expensive pneumatic machinery has been installed, and now one man, with these improved facilities, can do the work that it formerly required four men to do.

Waynesburg takes pride in her well-laid pavements. They are mostly made of Cleveland stone and a very large percentage of these miles of modern improvements were put in place by this hustling Waynesburger.

The Greene County Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument

THIS magnificent monument was erected in honor of the Greene County boys who served their country in the dark days of the sixties.

This is one of the finest monuments erected to the war heroes in this section, and is the gift of Greene County to forever show her appreciation of the service of her sons.

It was erected by Waynesburg's capable marble and stone cutter, Mr. S. A. Rinehart, whose handiwork is seen on such buildings as the residences of Messrs. J. B. F. Rinehart, Dr. J. T. Ullom, C. H. Bowlby, the Christian Church, and many other beautiful places around Waynesburg, where workmanship of the highest order was required.

Mr. Rinehart has a well equipped granite and marble works, where the very finest line of tombstones, monuments, vaults and all the latest and best designs are worked out both by hand and by machinery. The latest pneumatic machinery installed.

The shop and marble yards are located on South Morgan Street.

Judge Ingham's Yard

ON the morning of October 11, 1906, an unusual scene was presented to view. The ground was white with snow, and snow was clinging to the green foliage of the trees, making a rare picture indeed. Up to this date no frost had come to kill the green foliage and all nature was robed in its summer attire, when on the evening of the 10th, about two inches of snow fell, mingling the pure white with the deep green.

Mr. George W. Wisecarver, a native of Greene County, was born July 22, 1813. His father was wagon-master under Gen. Washington.

His parents were poor and his school advantages were meager, as he received but four months' schooling. He started in life at the age of fourteen to work his own way through the world. For his first day's work he received a fish-hook, and for a month's work, received a pair of shoes. He learned the cooper trade, working eighteen hours a day for almost twelve years.

By hard work and economy, he at one time owned 4000 acres of land. His estate at his death was said to be worth $250,000. He was president of the Citizens National Bank from the time of its organization until his death.

Mr. Wisecarver was a man of plain, frugal habits and of stern convictions. He detested all that was ignoble or dishonest. He was scrupulously honest.

Mrs. Priscilla Barnes Wisecarver and two of her grandchildren, George Wisecarver Wise and Robert Russell Wise.

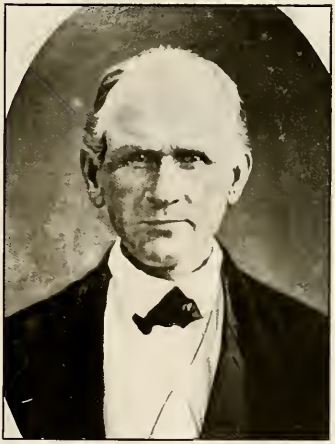
Mrs. Wisecarver was born September 15, 1818, and died April 29, 1906, in her eighty-eighth year.

She was united in marriage to Mr. George Wisecarver, May 1, 1843, and this union lasted for nearly fifty-one years.

Through all of her husband's labors and achievements, she was always a true helpmeet. Her energy, kind and cheerful disposition was a great source of comfort and encouragement to her husband and to all who came in contact with her.

Hon. Morgan R. Wise was born in 1830, near Zollarsville, Pa. He was educated at Waynesburg College. He was one of the gold seekers known as the "forty-niners." Afterwards he returned to Waynesburg and was twice elected to the State Legislature. He was a member of the forty-fifth and forty-sixth Congresses, where he represented Fayette, Greene and Washington Counties. After leaving Congress, he was U. S. Consul to Mexico.

Mr. Wise was a man of unlimited energy and enterprise.



Jesse Hook was born on a farm (now East Waynesburg) in the year 1800. He died in 1876. Mr. Hook was the first president of the Farmers and Drovers Bank. He was a large land owner; at one time he owned two thousand acres near Waynesburg. He probably gave employment to more people of this section than any other man of his day.

Mr. Hook was a member of the first official board of directors of the college.

Interior of Randolph & Bailey's Office

GREENE COUNTY has mines of wealth yet untouched. Limestone, building-stone, as fine as can be found anywhere, yellow and white sand, oil and gas in abundance, besides the great vein of Pittsburg coal underlying nearly all of the county; all this, together with fine farming and grazing lands, make this a spot endowed with great natural resources.

We are situated between the great coke-fields of Fayette County and the large foundries and factories of the West and the Southwest; between the great valley of the Monongahela and Ohio Rivers (the Monongahela Valley being perhaps the richest valley in the world), while our vast coal area awaits only the building of the railroads about to traverse the county from East to West and from North to South, and the development of the rich mines.

No one is more familiar with the resources, probable growth and developments to follow in the near future than the firm whose place of business is here shown—Randolph & Bailey—both having been born in the county and educated at Waynesburg College. J. A. F. Randolph, the senior member, has been practically at the head of this firm ever since it was established, and no one has had better opportunity to watch the developments and possible outcome of this section than he.

This is the largest and oldest insurance, real estate and loan agency in the county, having been established in 1880. They represent the largest and best fire insurance companies in America, besides first-class life insurance companies, accident and sick benefits, etc., and their patrons have the benefit of their experience of years in business.

This firm has always had a large custom outside of the town and county, and anyone wishing to learn more of the interests and possibilities here mentioned will do well to correspond with Randolph & Bailey.

The Rocks (the Old Swimming Hole) and Crawford's Bridge

The Allison Building (From an Old Photograph by Wallace)

THIS building is one of much interest to people who frequented the streets of Waynesburg some thirty years ago. Those who have grown up with the town will readily recognize the building; nor will they be slow to see the foot-bridge, the end of which can be seen between the building in question and the frame one to the left. Many of the older persons of our town can remember crossing this bridge on their way to attend Sunday-school at the old Cumberland Church, which stood in what is now Monument Park. The hollow which this bridge spanned is pretty well filled up with buildings and fine residences.

Great indeed have been the changes wrought in this part of Waynesburg: to the right, and across the alley, you can see a part of the old Bradley Hotel, which has recently been torn down, and in its place has been erected the handsome building known as the People's Bank Building. To the left is a frame house; on the front of it hangs the dishpan and broom, from which we infer that the women of that day were carrying on war against dirt in much the same way that our mothers, wives and sisters are doing to-day. On this site now stands the three-story Jacobs & Headley Building.

Remarkable indeed has been the increase in real estate values of these three and of all Waynesburg property in the past thirty years; and there certainly cannot be a doubt in the mind of anyone who has pondered on the future of the town and county, but that the next few years will witness a much more remarkable increase in property values in general. This building has also had quite a change in appearance in the way of business-like fronts. The storeroom over which we see the sign of Sayers & Hoskinson, is now occupied by J. T. Rogers & Co., the well-known druggists. On the other side of the center door is located the Ingram & Orndoff shoe store, while the second and third floors are occupied as offices.

Burns & Headlee, the hustling real estate and insurance agents, ever ready to cater to the wants of those who are looking for investments, or those who have real estate to sell, are located on the third floor of this building, where in former days Mr. Wallace, and later Mr. Rogers, took many a likeness. They pictured only what was then true, but contrast their work with this picture of some present facts and the future realities.

Greene County, according to the geological survey, has 375,000 acres of seven-foot vein of coal, which to-day can probably be bought for $50,000,000; when mined it is worth at one dollar per ton, $2,703,100,000, or more than fifty times the amount for which it is now selling; thus for every dollar you put into coal, you ought to get in return, $54. Think it over, figure it out. The population of Waynesburg has more than doubled in the last ten years; three-fourths of our increase has come from the rural districts. Farmers have sold their coal and moved into town to educate their children. Many others will do likewise within the next ten years; some will want to re-locate on some good farming lands, and to these very features, Messrs. Burns and Headlee are devoting a great deal of their time. They have made this a special study and know where and how to please just this class of people.

JAMES J. PAULEY

THE MESSENGER

IN 1813 Dr. Layton started the Waynesburg Messenger. In 1840 Mr. Charles A. Black was editor and proprietor. He sold out to James W. Hays in 1842, and Mr. Hays sold to W. T. H. Pauley in 1844. In 1852 Mr. Pauley sold to J. S. Stockdale and James S. Jennings, but the end of the year saw Mr. Pauley again at the head. In 1857 Mr. Jennings for the second time became editor. In 1867 Mr. Pauley again took charge of the paper and remained in charge until 1888, when he rented the entire plant to James S. Jennings; but the year 1888 found Mr. Pauley once more in the editorial and managerial chair. Mr. Pauley associated with himself his two sons, James J. and John F. Mr. Pauley died in 1897, and three years later Mr. James J. died. Since then the paper has been managed and edited by John F. Pauley.

The Messenger has always been one of the best read, most quoted papers in this section. No better story of the growth of our town could be told than just the plain story of the trials, hardships, financial problems and many handicaps with which the Messenger has had to struggle. When Mr. Pauley took hold of the paper it was printed on a hand-press, delivered throughout the county on horseback by the editor in person. To-day the Messenger is printed twice a week and has a very wide circulation. The Messenger has a well equipped job department in connection with its plant. In policy this paper has always kept the rooster at the head of its editorial columns. It advocates the old Thomas Jefferson style of Democracy, pure and simple. Few papers have had the same continuous existence.

THE DEMOCRAT

THE Greene County Democrat was founded in 1881; the first issue was on Saturday, December 17th. J. F. Campbell and D. R. P. Huss, Esqs., set the enterprise afloat. Mr. Huss bought the outfit for the Democrat at Washington, D. C., the same having been used in the publication of The Standard. Simon R. Huss became editor, but in 1884 F. M. Spragg bought the entire plant and became editor, with S. R. Huss associate editor. In 1885 Colonel James S. Jennings bought a one-half interest, and in 1887 James W. Hays, Jr., became sole editor and proprietor, selling out in 1893 to John T. Goodwin & Co., the style of the firm changing on January 1, 1896, to The Democrat Publishing Company. The Democrat has been edited and managed by W. O. Headlee since 1893.

It has always been a remarkably successful paper. It now has a weekly circulation of 4,200. The Democrat has a well equipped job department in connection with the paper. Always true to its name, it advocates pure Jeffersonian Democracy. The Democrat is strictly a family paper, giving all the news of Greene County.

THE Waynesburg Republican was founded in 1833 by Job Smith Goff, but at the end of the year it suspended for want of support. James W. Moorhead revived it in 1841, when it was called the Greene County Whig. Once more it suspended. In 1843 S. Sigfried, Jr., again revived it. Thomas Porter was at the helm in 1851. Gen. J. H. Wells had charge in 1852. Joseph Cooke purchased the plant and changed the name to the Waynesburg Eagle. In 1856 the name of Greene County Republican was restored by E. R. Bartleson. L. K. Evans was editor during the Civil War. Riddle and Clark then had charge. In 1866 it was published by James E. Sayers, Esq. Mr. Sayers gave the paper its present name, the Waynesburg Republican. In 1868 James N. Miller gave the paper another change of name. It was then called the Repository. W. G. W. Day took charge and again renamed it the Waynesburg Republican. In 1884 Mr. Day sold a half interest to I. H. Knox. In 1885 J. W. Ray and J. P. Teagarden bought Mr. Day's interest in the paper and later on sold their interest to J. H. Van Cleve, who, in the latter part of 1892, sold his interest to I. H. Knox, who is sole proprietor and editor.

The Republican is one of the best edited, best printed political and general family papers in our town. Clean, wholesome, and ever advocating the best interests of our town and county. There is a large, well appointed job department in connection with this plant.

When in Waynesburg, don't forget to pay a friendly visit to this office.

WAYNESBURG TIMES AND INDEPENDENT

THE newest newspaper in Greene County is The Waynesburg Daily Times, which issued its initial number February 4, 1901. It is newsy, crisp, gossipy and a household favorite. It is Republican in its politics and Democratic in its policies. It is the boomer of everything good for Greene County and is intensely good roadish and immensely railroadish. It has been the "official" organ of the Wabash railroad all these years and its "Follow the flag" has become a proverb. Next to bread and butter, it is a daily necessity.

THE Independent has entered upon its thirty-fifth year. It is independent in politics, religion and a lot more things. It is always on the side of right and has been laboring for a life-time to benefit and bless Greene-countians. It has contributed its free share toward aiding every good work of whatever order or calling. It is liberal and has many good and true friends. It wields a wide influence for God and home and native land.

The editor of the Times and Independent is J. W. McKay.
